01 – Heritage

A family story of outdoor design.

A family story of outdoor design

Founded in 1959 as a family business, Roberti has stood from its very origins among the leading names in outdoor furniture.

From the beginning the company played a pioneering role in design — anticipating and interpreting evolving trends in both form and materials, long before the outdoor world caught up.

Six decades of outdoor design

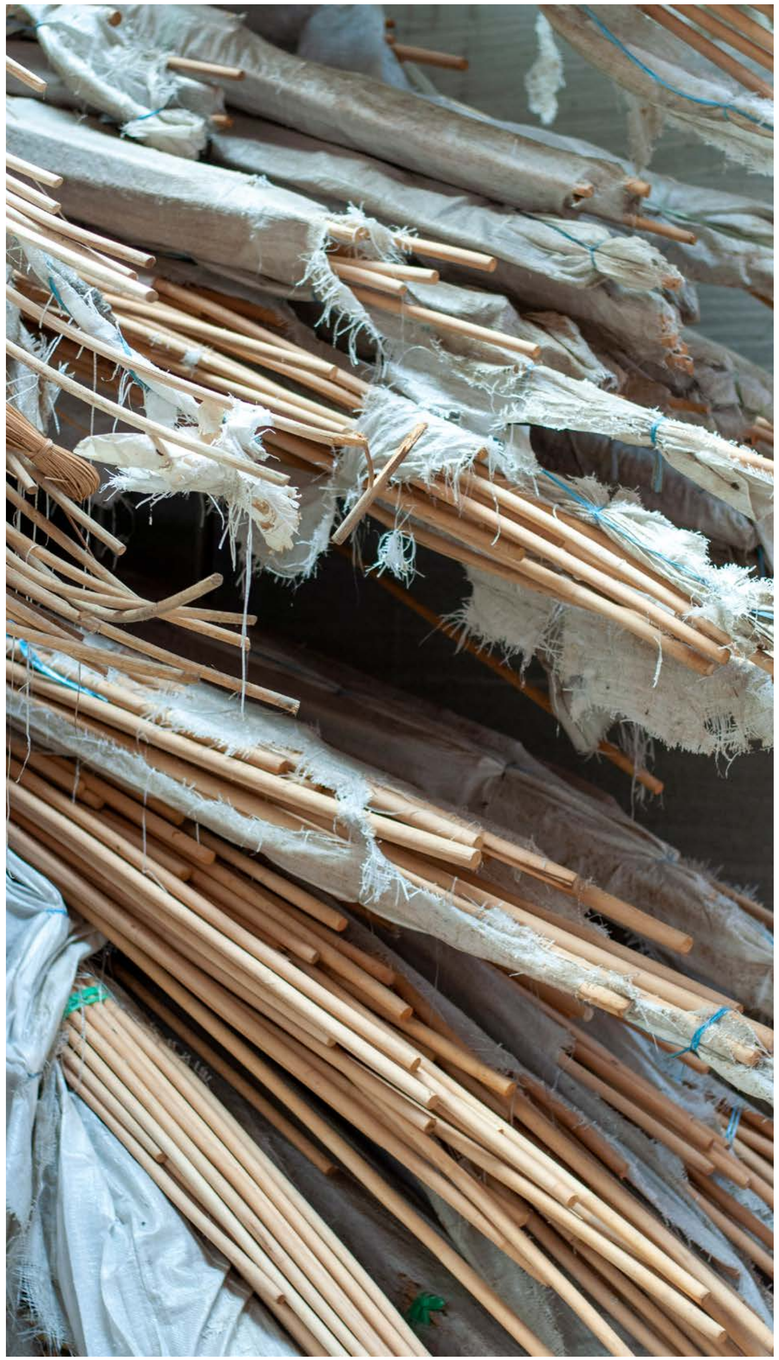

From traditional craftsmanship to contemporary outdoor living, Roberti's identity has continuously evolved through materials, forms and new ways of experiencing outdoor spaces.

Roberti’s heritage began with the the mastery of rattan and natural fibres, materials that required manual skill, patience and a deep understanding of form, structure and function.
Over time, this original craftsmanship evolved through new materials and technologies, preserving the character of woven furniture while adapting it to contemporary outdoor environments.
This continuity between historical knowledge and material research remains one of the defining elements of Roberti’s design language.

A CONTINUOUS THREAD
HISTORICAL KNOWLEDGE, REINTERPRETED THROUGH MATERIAL RESEARCH.

02 – Made in Italy

Craftsmanship, technology and material culture.

Between Veneto & Friuli

Production is based in Italy, between the Veneto and Friuli Venezia Giulia regions, where skilled craftsmanship meets advanced technologies and premium materials.

This synergy lets Roberti reach exceptional quality standards while preserving the authenticity of Italian manufacturing tradition.

SKILLED CRAFTSMANSHIP

Hand-finished by Italian artisans.

ADVANCED TECHNOLOGY

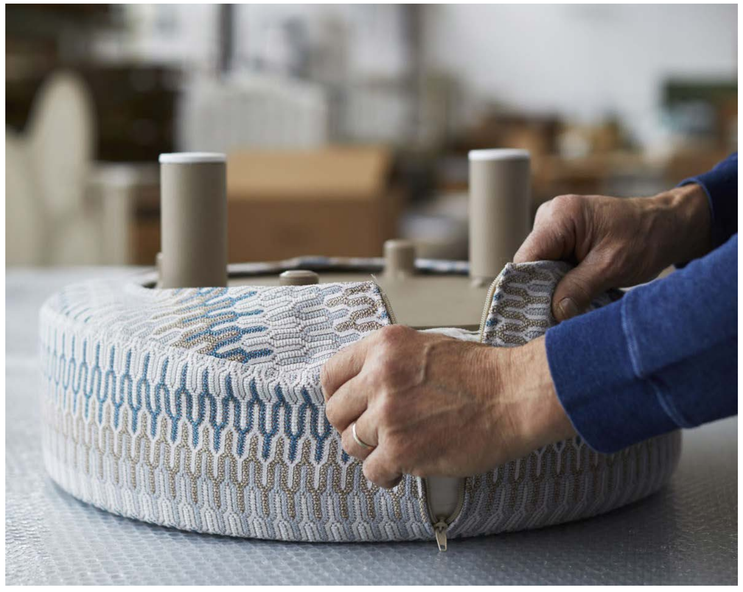

Precision engineering for the outdoors.

PREMIUM MATERIALS

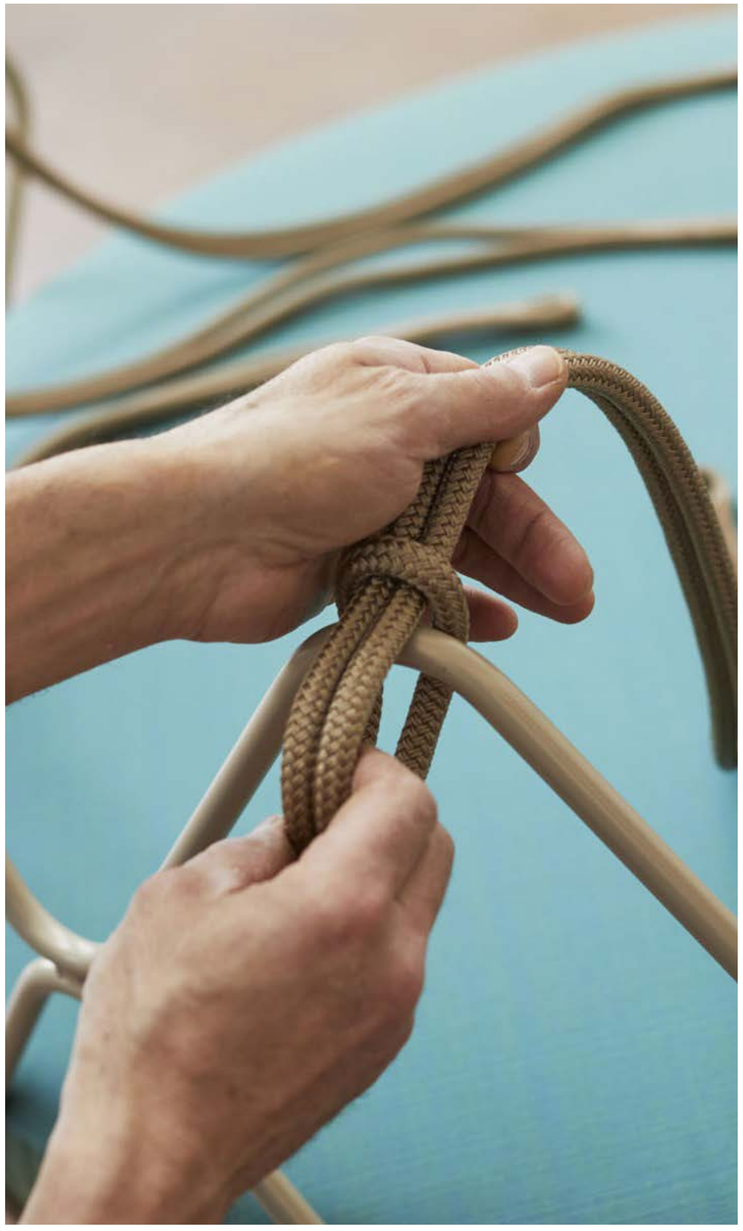

Selected to endure and to age well.

RESPONSIBLE BY DESIGN

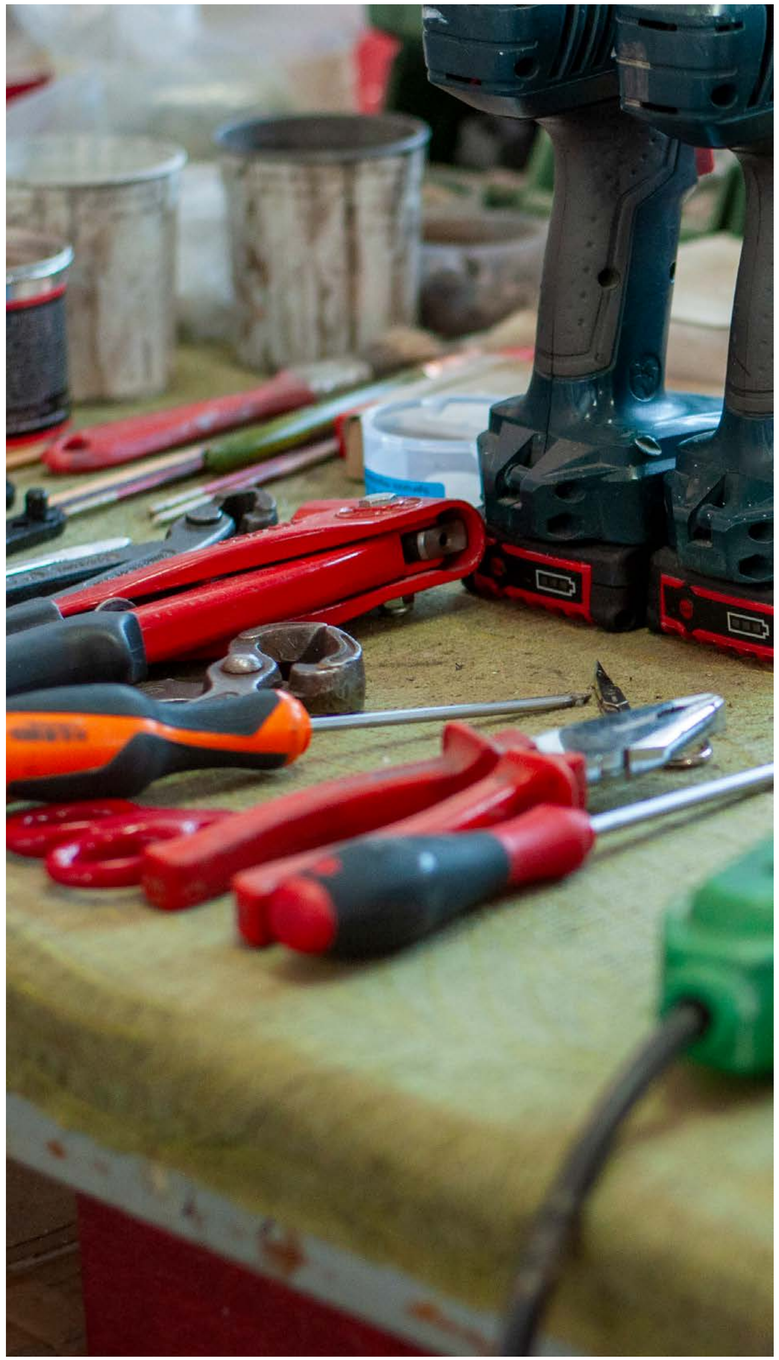

Separable, recyclable at end of life.

Italian manufacturing at Roberti is built on specialised knowledge developed through experience. Many processes still rely on the precision and sensitivity of skilled hands, particularly where materials, finishes and details require individual attention.
This expertise works alongside contemporary production technologies, allowing craftsmanship to evolve while preserving the knowledge and attention to detail that have always been part of Roberti's manufacturing culture.

Made to the project

Roberti collections are crafted to offer flexibility across different spaces and design requirements. A broad selection of finishes, colours, textiles and technical materials allows each product to respond to the identity of a project.

Modular elements and configurable compositions provide further freedom, allowing designers and architects to create distinctive outdoor settings while preserving the character and design language of each Roberti collection.

03 – Materials & Craftsmanship

Engineered to endure, designed to elevate.

Engineered to endure, designed to elevate

Roberti's research pairs technical performance with refined, tactile detail — furniture built to withstand open-air life while retaining the sophistication of interior design.

Materials at Roberti are selected not only for their technical performance, but for the way they shape the experience of each piece. Aluminium and stainless steel provide structural strength; HPL surfaces, outdoor textiles and specialised cushioning systems respond to the demands of open-air environments. High-performance ropes and synthetic fibres combine resistance with a softer, tactile character.

Many of Roberti's most distinctive pieces are still characterised by hand-woven elements, transforming technical materials into visual and tactile signs of continuity with the company's origins.

ROPE & FIBRES

Premium nautical rope and synthetic woven fibres, hand-woven — weather-resistant and unmistakably Roberti.

HPL & SURFACES

HPL and advanced outdoor surfaces, engineered for durability and long-lasting beauty.

ALUMINIUM & STEEL

Powder-coated aluminium and AISI 304 stainless steel for lasting structural integrity.

TECHNICAL TEXTILES

Batyline, fabrics and differentiated-density foams are waterproof, breathable and IMO-tested.

04 – Contract & Hospitality

Designed for outdoor spaces across the world.

05 – Marine

Designed for life at sea.

Marine environments place particular demands on outdoor furniture, where exposure, constant use, comfort and material performance must coexist within spaces designed around open-air living. Roberti collections bring this balance to cruise ships and marine hospitality settings, combining technical materials and carefully considered construction with the refinement and comfort of contemporary residential design. From open decks to lounges and dining areas, each setting becomes an extension of life on board — connecting comfort, atmosphere and the surrounding marine landscape.

06 – Iconic Designs

Signature pieces, enduring identities

Oasi

TECHNICAL EMOTIONS

Conceived as a sheltered space for open-air relaxation, Oasi transforms the traditional canopy lounger into a distinctive architectural presence. Its circular structure is defined by a dense sequence of knotted ropes, creating a light, permeable enclosure inspired by the soft forms and movement of nature.

ARCHIPRODUCTS DESIGN AWARDS • WINNER 2021

Gravity

TECHNICAL EMOTIONS

Introduced as a new expression of suspended outdoor living, Gravity turns the sofa into a place of movement and retreat. Its circular form combines a stainless-steel structure with nautical rope and generous cushions, while different configurations allow it to be suspended, supported by its own frame or completed with a sunshade.

Charme
rocking chair

ANTONIO DE MARCO

A contemporary interpretation of the rocking chair, Charme combines fluid lines with the tactile character of woven rope. Different tensions within the weave allow the backrest to adapt naturally to the body, while Iroko runners introduce a warm material contrast to the powder-coated steel structure.

Armàn
love bed

SANTIAGO SEVILLANO

Generous proportions and an enveloping silhouette define the Armàn Love Bed as a space for both relaxation and social life. Its woven rope surface gives a tactile, crafted quality to the structure, balancing the precision of stainless steel and aluminium with the softness of deep outdoor cushioning.

Portofino

canopied day bed

SANTIAGO SEVILLANO

With its generous canopy and hand-woven nautical rope, the Portofino Day-Bed creates an intimate space within the open air. Designed for terraces, gardens, pool and wellness areas, its architecture brings together shade, comfort and the distinctive woven language that has long characterised Roberti outdoor furniture.

The next horizon

In 2026, a new chapter began. William Giorgini, Roberto J. Toffoletto and Francesco Zago — who had represented and developed Roberti in the United States for over twenty years — acquired the brand.

Their vision is to take Roberti forward while preserving its heritage and strengthening the territorial identity of its supply chain.

The new flagship showroom in Portopiccolo marks the starting point of this journey: a new space, a new direction and the first expression of Roberti Outdoor’s future.

10 – The Flagship Showroom

A new space for outdoor living.

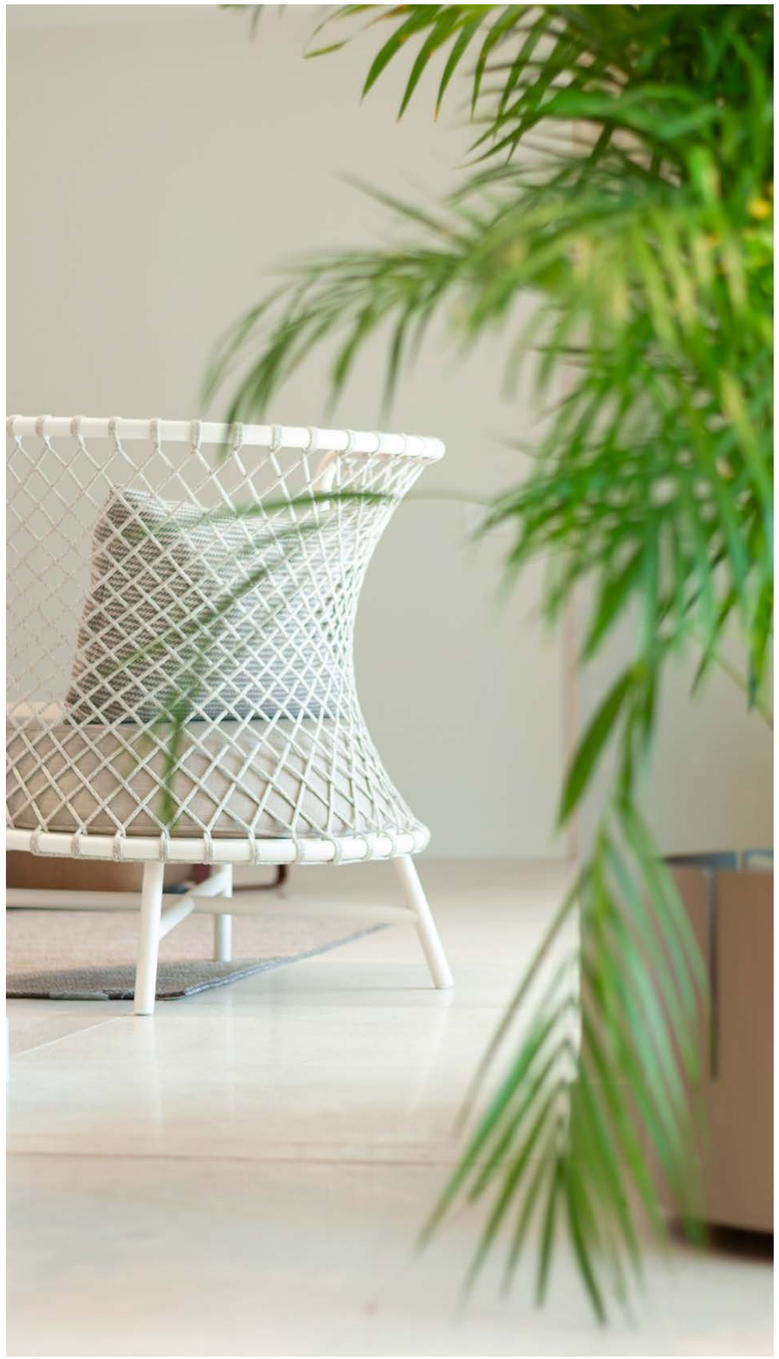

Designed as an experience

The Roberti flagship showroom in Portopiccolo offers a new way to experience the brand and its vision of contemporary outdoor living.

Conceived as a dialogue between furniture, materials, colours and space, the showroom brings together Roberti collections in an immersive setting where design and comfort become part of the same experience.

More than a display space, the new Roberti Outdoor showroom is conceived as an environment to explore the brand through its collections, materials and details. Furniture is presented within a sequence of settings that evoke different ways of experiencing outdoor living, allowing individual pieces to become part of a broader spatial narrative. Textures, colours and carefully considered compositions create a warm, immersive atmosphere, while the dialogue between products and space reflects Roberti's approach to contemporary outdoor design. The showroom becomes a place to discover the collection not simply through individual objects, but through the lifestyle and environments they are designed to create.

11 – Portopiccolo

A landscape shaped by the sea.

Between the Karst and the Adriatic

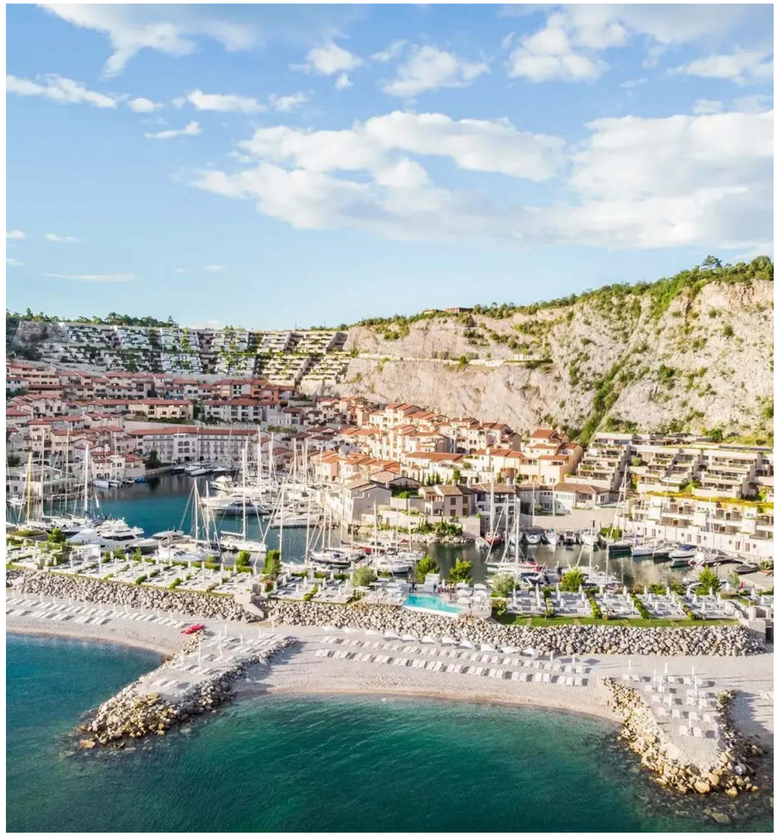

Set in the Gulf of Trieste, Portopiccolo is a distinctive seaside village nestled between the Adriatic Sea and the Karst cliffs.

Architecture, landscape and contemporary hospitality come together in a setting shaped by its close relationship with the sea: a natural context for Roberti's vision of outdoor living.

Portopiccolo is conceived as a place where architecture becomes part of the landscape rather than simply occupying it. Built along the natural contours of the coastline, the village unfolds through terraces, pedestrian paths and open spaces overlooking the sea.
Stone, vegetation and views of the Adriatic define its character, while residences, hospitality and leisure spaces create a contemporary interpretation of Mediterranean coastal living. The result is a destination designed to be experienced at different scales — from the intimacy of its streets and terraces to the wider relationship between the village, the cliffs and the sea.
